

Phil 101: Introduction to Philosophy

Spring 2023

T 6-9:10pm

Remote on Zoom

Instructor: Nathaniel Greely Email: ngreely@compton.edu

Course Description:

Philosophers ask and try to answer the most fundamental questions about the world. Some of the questions we will explore include: What can we know, and what does it mean to know something? What should we do, both in a practical and a moral sense? Is your mind identical to your brain? Are you the same person you were ten years ago, and if so what makes that the case? This course is an introductory survey of topics in contemporary analytic philosophy. These include epistemology, metaphysics, philosophy of mind, reasoning, philosophy of science, and ethics. The course is divided into seven two-week units. No previous knowledge of philosophy, logic, or science is required or assumed, though contributions from students with training in various disciplines is welcome.

Learning Outcomes:

Students should be able to demonstrate their understanding of various philosophical topics by engaging in discussions, completing written exams, and writing and revising an original essay that argues for a specific thesis related to specific philosophical problem.

Assessments:

The assessments in this course are largely designed to keep you engaged with the lectures, readings, and other students in the course. Your grades for attendance and discussion, reading reflections, research proposal, and essay draft comprise 60% of your grade. It should be easy to do well on these components if you stay engaged. The midterm and final essay will be graded on quality - to get top marks on these components you will be required to demonstrate understanding of the material (for the midterm and final exam) and some original philosophical insight (for the final essay). Your final grade in the course will be composed of the following:

Attendance – 15%

Lecture attendance is required. In lecture I will not only present and explain the readings, but we will engage in active learning projects. Being in class is essential to these activities. Exceptions will only be made with a documented excuse, such as a doctor's note. You may miss one lecture without an excuse and still receive full marks for attendance.

Reading Reflections – 15%

At the end of each two-week unit, we will devote part of one class period to review, followed by a short, in-class essay in which students summarize what they have learned from one of the readings in the unit. The goal of the reading reflections is to assess whether students are keeping up with reading and lectures. They are designed to be quite easy for students who do so.

Midterm – 15%

The midterm take place in real time during the class session on Mar. 28. It will consist of two short essays (1-2 pages each). Students will be provided four essay prompts ahead of time and may choose to write on any two of them. The essay prompts will be on topics from units 1-3. The short essays should demonstrate understanding of the claims and arguments from the readings and lectures on the given topic. The essay prompts will be provided Mar. 21 and students will have a week to craft a response to the two they choose. The midterm will be taken in class during the normal time (so log in to the Zoom session while completing the exam).

Research Proposal – 10%

Students will present their plan for a research paper to the class and answer questions about it. This plan may change over the course of composing the draft and revising it into a final paper. This assignment is designed to get you thinking about your essay early-on and receive feedback on how it may be improved. Students are free to choose any topic that interests them. Specific prompts will also be provided as models for the appropriate scope of the essay, and students may choose to write on those prompts if they wish. Prompts will be provided Mar. 28 after the midterm. Two class sessions will be devoted to presentation of research proposals – Apr. 18 and Apr. 25.

Essay draft – 15%

One of the most important parts of writing an essay is revision. Students will be required to turn in a rough draft of their essay, due May 9, submitted through Canvas. The essay should present and develop an original thesis on one of the topics of the course. Prompts will be provided, but students are welcome to develop their own essay topics. The essay should be narrowly focused on a very specific claim, likely a single premise in an argument presented in a lecture or reading. Provide an original argument for your view about that claim and consider objections to your argument. The essay should be 5 pages (1250 words), give or take a page. It should be easy to get full points for your draft so long as it reflects an honest effort to make a cogent argument.

Final Essay draft – 15%

Students will revise their essay, taking into account the comments they receive. You are almost certainly expected to make significant changes to your essay in order to get top marks. The final draft will be graded on quality, not merely on effort. The final essay will be due June 6, submitted through Canvas.

Final Exam – 15%

The final exam will be similar in format to the midterm exam. It will consist of three short essays (1-2 pages each). Students will be provided six essay prompts ahead of time and may choose to write on any two of them. The essay prompts will be on topics from units 4-7. The short essays should demonstrate understanding of the claims and arguments from the readings and lectures on the given topic. The essay prompts will be provided May 23. We will then devote a class session to review. The final exam takes place June 6.

Course Schedule

Unit 1: Intro to intro

In this unit we will read some philosophical short fiction and prime our minds to begin thinking philosophically.

Feb. 14 – Course Introduction; Terry Bisson – “They’re Made Out of Meat”; Ursula K. LeGuin – “The Ones Who Walk Away from Omelas”

Feb. 21 – Daniel Dennett – “Where am I?”; Jorge Luis Borges – “The Circular Ruins”; Active review; Reading Response

Unit 2: Epistemology

This unit covers the topic of knowledge. We will discuss what constitutes knowledge, what sort of knowledge it is possible to attain, different types of knowledge, and forms of injustice related to knowledge.

Feb. 28 – Descartes – Meditations 1, 2, and 3

Mar. 7 – Edmund Gettier – “Is Justified, True Belief Knowledge?”; Tamar Gendler – “Alief and Belief”; Rachel McKinnon – “Epistemic Injustice”; Active Review; Reading Response

Unit 3: Ethics

This unit explores some contemporary problems in applied ethics. Who is responsible for climate change and how should we address it? What is cultural appropriation and is it always unethical?

Mar. 14 – Introduction to Ethical Theory; Sinnott-Armstrong – “It’s not My Fault: Global Warming and Individual Obligations”; Banks – “Individual Responsibility for Climate Change”

Mar. 21 – Artworld Roundtable – “Is Cultural Appropriation Ever Okay?”; Taylor – “Does Hip Hop Belong to Me?”; Active Review; Reading Response; Midterm prompts posted

Mar. 28 Midterm

Unit 4: Metaphysics

In this unit we will consider the nature of personal identity over time. Are you the same person you were ten years ago, yesterday, or even five minutes ago? If so, what is the basis of that identity?

Apr. 4 – John Locke – An Essay Concerning Human Understanding II-27: Identity and Diversity; Derek Parfit – “Personal Identity”

Apr. 11 - David Hume – A Treatise of Human Nature I-4-5: Of Personal Identity; Pancavaggi Sutta: Five Brethren; Chachakka Sutra: The Six Sextets; Eric Olsen – “Argument for Animalism”; Active Review; Reading Response

Apr 18 - Research Proposals

Apr. 25 - Research Proposals

Unit 5: Mind

This unit covers the nature of the human mind. Is the mind a brain, a soul, a function, or something else? We will then cover one influential naturalistic account of mental content.

May. 2 – Rene Descartes – Meditations 6; Princess Elisabeth of Bohemia – Letters; Paul Churchland – “Arguments against Dualism”

May 9 - Hilary Putnam – “The Nature of Mental States”; Fred Dretske “If You Can’t Make One, You Don’t Know How It Works”; Active Review (also for Midterm); Reading Response; Essay Draft Due

Unit 6: Reasoning

Reasoning is an essential tool for making our way through the world. We make inferences and predictions on the basis of current perception, past knowledge, general principles, and probabilities. Good reasoning leads to good lives. But humans are often notoriously fallacious in their reasoning. This unit explores these fallacies and considers whether there are more reliable reasoning practices.

May 16 – Worksheet on Fallacies; Giere Ch. 9 - Decision Theory

May 23 – Giere Ch. 10 – Decision Theory; Tversky & Kahneman – “Judgement under Uncertainty: Heuristics and Biases”; Active Review; Reading Response ; Final Exam Prompts posted

May 30 – Discussion of Essays; Review for Final Exam

Jun. 6 – Final Exam (in class); Final Essays Due

Diversity and Inclusion:

Individuals of all ages, backgrounds, beliefs, ethnicities, genders (and identities & expressions thereof), national origins, religious affiliations, sexual orientations, ability - and other visible and non-visible differences are welcome in this course. All members of this class are expected to contribute to a respectful, welcoming and inclusive environment for every other member of the class. We will be discussing controversial topics in this class and students may confront views that they find wrong or even reprehensible. Where possible I would like to confront those views with reasoned arguments. If you find that a particular reading or assignment is so emotionally charged that it interferes with your ability to complete it, send me an email and we'll see if there is a solution that we can all be happy with.
